Project description

Objectives:

- 1) Education of specialists on social work who can take into account the psychological state of the convicted person and increase their motivation to positive changes through involvement in higher education.
- 2) The development of an innovative model for the re-socialization of women who serve sentences in places of deprivation of liberty through higher education, which can become a "social lift" and allows them to change their life and return to society as a full member.

Activities:

- 1) training of highly skilled social work specialists who will work in the penitentiary area and implement reforms.
- 2) Development and implementation of the module for Masters on social work in the direction "Social work with convicted persons in places of deprivation of liberty".
- 3) Trainings for social work students on innovative pedagogical technologies for carrying out studies for/with women behind bars.
- 4) Implementation of bridge-learning method in the project, during which, students will carry out, in the framework of pedagogical and research practice, the training of women serving sentences in places of detention, in a distance format.

The main purpose of this work is to prepare convicted women for admission to vocational and higher education institutions.

Results:

- 1) Getting students experience and work with this category of prisoners.
- 2) Participation of social work MA students, who have no deformation and penitentiary stress will allow for the gradual change of the social roles of the condemned woman.
- 3) Resocialization and reapplication of convicted women.
- 4) Reducing the recidivism of crimes, and as a consequence of the reduction of crime in Ukraine and Central Asia.
- 5) International cooperation in the field of social work for convicted women.
